County of Wigtown
Census Records of 1841
by surname

Portpatrick Village

Introduction

If there is no mention of the place of birth after the person's details then that person was born in county of Wigtown.

The census records themselves do not indicate numbers for the individual houses in the villages or farm cottages, but to assist the researcher to identify neighbours etc. numbers have been given. The third column is the number of the enumeration district followed by the page number.

The abbreviation h.l.w. has been used for handloom weaver.

The enumerators of this district have given family details which, although stroked out, have been given.

Portpatrick

In 1841 the population of Portpatrick was 997. One man and seven women were in their eighties. The unnamed daughter of William Neal, carter, was three days old.

Twenty seven people were born in England, three in the Isle of Man, one in Wales, one in Spain and one hundred and seventy eight in Ireland. Four people were of independent means. No paupers are recorded, but there were two orphans and five deserted children. One sailor is recorded as being blind.

The Rev. Andrew Urquhart was the parish minister. The Rev. J. McAuley from Donnaghdee was also present. Hugh Gibson was the parish schoolmaster. Alexander Hunter was the Kirk Officer, Andrew Semple the postmaster, Peter Baird the police officer, William Fernie a surveyor of customs and Hugh Gorristin the town cryer.

Jane Adair and Euphemia McCrea were shop keepers and Andrew Niven a store keeper. There were four merchants, two innkeepers, five grocers, two bakers and one flesher.

Tradesmen included eight shoemakers, three joiners, seven tailors and one apprenticce, two weavers, two carters, two nailers, six blacksmiths, two carpenters, five stone cutters, three quarriers, and nine masons. There were five washerwomen and twenty four sewers. There was one miller, one cooper, one engineer and one ostler.

Two men were mail coachguards and one was a mail coach driver. There were fourteen seamen, two sailors, three boatmen, nine fishers, two ship's carpenters and one mariner. There was also a captain in the Royal Navy
